SUPERTUNIAS HAVE SUPERPOWERS!

Bring on instant summer with Supertunia petunias! There's no easier way to bring vibrance to your patio pots and garden beds than to fill them with these exuberant annuals. Here, we've used several colors from our Supertunia Mini Vista line to create vigorous, dense masses of color in what was once an underutilized space in the landscape. Their more tightly mounded, fuller shape eliminates the need for trimming up overreaching stems. Plus, like all Supertunias, you won't have to spend your summer pinching off spent blossoms to keep them coming all the way into fall. Where could you use some of Supertunia's superpowers?

SOPHISTICATED SHADE

Though we can't all live on the sunny side of the street, your front porch and garden can certainly be just as lush and lovely as your neighbors' if you choose your plants wisely. Shade-loving annuals in rich purple, crisp white and emerald green tones comprise the sophisticated color palette for this east-facing home.

Varieties that enjoy being awoken by the morning sun like sweet potato vine, impatiens and purple spiderwort are set out in front of this porch, while those that can handle more shade are tucked up closer to the house.

Swapping at least a few of your containers for self-watering AquaPots® like the Techno White style you see here will cut down on the time needed to water. That's especially important when you have numerous pots to care for.

ALL SET FOR GUESTS

Your efforts in prepping your porch won't go unnoticed when your friends and neighbors gather for some fellowship and fun. Leave room for comfy seating to encourage them to stay awhile. It's time to reconnect and share stories again. Conversation flows freely in beautiful spaces like this where all are welcome.

If your front porch is shaded, take note of these flowers and foliage plants to fill your containers this season.

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR FRONT YARD

Why should your front landscape be just for looks? In a time when many homeowners have repurposed their formal living room, our front yards are now becoming more functional, too. They are a place to play, gather and express your style.

The front yard of this Sears, Roebuck and Company kit house built by the owner's grandfather is planted up with lively shades of red, orange and gold – the perfect palette to match this young family's energy. Sun loving, heat tolerant plants fill the beds with non-stop color that'll last well-past when school's back in session.

INFUSE YOUR LIFE WITH COLOR

When you step into Tracy's magical garden, you immediately feel the positive energy that fills this place – a feeling matched by her enthusiasm for striking colors and bold patterns. Playing with our Annual of the Year, Truffula Pink gomphrena, as one of her "crayons", she styled her garden beds which welcomed pollinating bees, butterflies and skippers of all kinds all summer long. Large pots for setting on the patio or poolside are perfect for these whimsical flowers, too.

CALADIUM
OF THE YEAR

CRAFTED WITH HEART

They say that all gardens are a form of autobiography. What does your garden say about you?

If you've seen the gardens of Laura of @Garden Answer, you know they are crafted from the heart. She surrounds her family's home with beauty, warmth and inviting colors and yes – even heart-shaped plants like Heart to Heart® 'Scarlet Flame' caladiums. Since they grow just as nicely in sun and shade, their showy leaves bring a bright pop of color to garden beds, raised beds and containers set anywhere in the landscape.

The most important thing to know if you've never grown caladiums is that they are tropical plants which absolutely adore steamy hot weather. Plant them after the coldest days of spring have passed and they'll sprout quickly in your warm, moist soil.

CONTAINER HACK: PERENNIALS WITH CONSTANT COLOR

How often have you wondered if there is a perennial equivalent for your favorite flowering annual? It's a question we receive often, so here's a trick to try. Hardy plants like coral bells that come in splashy shades of royal purple, pumpkin spice and sunshine gold, as well as showy hostas, will give you the non-stop color you're going for in your containers and landscape.

Pro Tip: Do you garden in heavy, wet clay? Try growing your hostas and coral bells in containers instead of in the ground. If voles are an issue, line the bottom of the pot with ¼" galvanized steel hardware cloth to keep the critters out. In late fall, move the pots into an unheated garage or covered outdoor space so they can get their winter's rest.

LIVE LIFE IN PERFECT HARMONY

Have you ever noticed how, when you are surrounded by plants, your worries tend to fall away and your mood is brighter? It's not just in your mind – peer-reviewed studies have shown that plants really do provide tangible benefits to our health and well-being like:

Reducing Stress. The simple acts of giving your plants a deep drink of water and plucking off their brown leaves gives people a positive way to channel their stress and frustrations into something life-giving.

Generating Happiness. Studies show that people who keep plants or flowers in their home feel happier, more relaxed, and have a more positive outlook on life.

Improving Relationships. Nurturing plants has a natural correlation to nurturing our relationships with one another. People who spend time caring for plants are more likely to care for people, too.

Feeling More Alive. When our worries are drowned by the beauty of nature, our feeling of vitality returns and we find ourselves having more energy.

Accelerating Healing. Some plants possess tremendous healing properties. The simple act of being in the presence of plants has been shown to reduce the time needed to heal.

Wouldn't you love to help someone live their life in harmony with nature? Next time you visit, bring them a new plant. Stay awhile and help them water their houseplants or tend to the flowers in their garden. The garden therapy will benefit you both!

GROUNDED IN NATURE

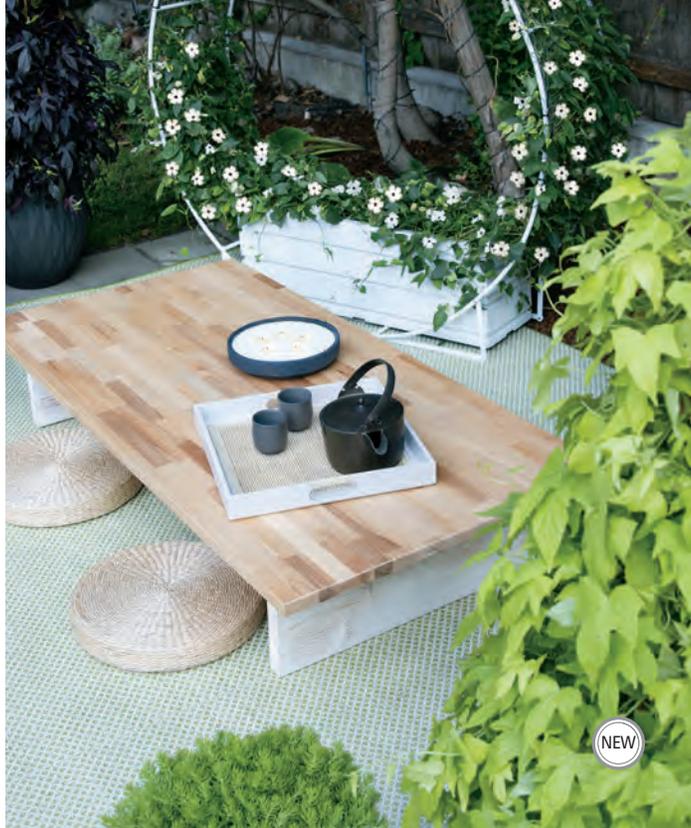

When the world starts to feel like a never-ending cycle of stress and obligations, you need a place to escape from it all. You won't have to go far or spend a lot of money to get there. A special place devoted to regaining balance can be as close as your own backyard.

A once-underutilized space in the garden you see here was transformed in the style of a Japanese-style tatami room – a traditional place to gather and share tea, study and rest. Here, you'll sit at a low table set on a thick, woven mat with your shoes off and bathe yourself in the natural beauty that surrounds you. A simple neutral palette of black, white and chartreuse minimizes distractions and helps to clear your mind of the day's stressors.

Be inspired to create a space that will ground you in nature and find our container trellising guide at pwwin.rs/trellis.

MAXIMIZE YOUR SMALL SPACE

Container gardening opens up a world of opportunities for those with a huge love for plants but small outdoor spaces.

Consider these three scenarios – the first, where an entire garden is packed into a small nook, an upper patio with a city view, and a compact deck you might find at a rental. See how each is completely transformed by the festive flair and vitality of the plants?

Consider your water source in your planning. Self-watering AquaPots are ideal for patios without a hose hookup nearby or use drought tolerant plants like lantana and euphorbia which don't require daily watering. Lightweight containers are ideal for rooftops and renters.

CREATE AN OFFICE WITH A VIEW

Here's a chance to give yourself that corner office with the calming view you've been wishing for. Let's create a flexible indoor/outdoor room where you will be inspired to do your best work from 9 to 5 and an inviting patio where you can relax at the end of the day.

It's been shown that work performed in the presence of plants boosts accuracy and memory by helping you focus. By maintaining a separate workspace – even if it's just a few steps away on the sun porch – you can mentally step away from home and prepare to be productive each morning. At the end of the day, close your office door, step out into the sunshine, and venture out into the garden to unwind.

MAKE GOING TO WORK FUN!

Wouldn't you love to work here? This vibrant take on an outdoor office strikes a balance between having a quiet place to gather your thoughts and a place where your creative spirit will be rekindled by the vivid colors, textures and scents of tropical plants. A space like this will keep you motivated to work even though you haven't left home.

Several Alocasias that spend their winters indoors as houseplants are repurposed in these containers as focal points and will be brought back inside in the fall. A supporting cast of part shade-loving caladiums, begonias, Swedish ivy and others round out the combinations for the summertime.

CONSIDER THESE DETAILS BEFORE MOVING YOUR OFFICE OUTDOORS:

1. Choose a covered spot in case of rain and to cut the sun's glare on your computer screen.
2. Find a spot where the Wi-Fi signal is strong if internet access is needed.
3. Outdoor lighting works well for Zoom calls but consider your backdrop.
4. Use a chair with wheels, portable laptop and multipurpose table if working in a flex space.

GREENHOUSE REIMAGINED

Once you've been bitten by the plant collector bug, you may find yourself wishing for a greenhouse. We wanted to see how well the DIY kits work, so we tried this relatively inexpensive hobby greenhouse kit by Palram. It turned out to be a perfect fit for this underutilized, protected space between the house and garage.

During the winter months, it will be chock full of plants that need to be kept out of the cold. But from spring through fall, it can be anything you want it to be – an art studio, a place to enjoy your morning coffee, or a propagation station perhaps. It also makes an ideal backdrop for a stylish grouping of container plants.

PLAN A BIRD-FRIENDLY BACKYARD

The entertaining chickadees that frequent your bird feeder are fun to watch, but they also play a key role in keeping the environment healthy. In exchange for food and shelter, birds provide us with free pest control services and fertilizer. They help to balance the food chain by taking care of mice, moles, voles and insects that multiply rapidly. You'll need fewer pesticides when birds do that important work for you.

BIRD-FRIENDLY BACKYARDS INCLUDE FOUR VITAL ELEMENTS:

Food – Native plants like winterberry, false sunflower, coneflower and false indigo are nature's own bird feeders. Blueberries and juniper berries are quickly consumed in summer and fall.

Water – Keep your bird baths clean to maintain a reliable source of fresh water for drinking, bathing and cooling off.

Shelter – Dense deciduous and evergreen shrubs like arborvitae, junipers and elderberries in addition to grasses, tall ferns and trees give birds a place to safely hide and find shelter in inclement weather.

Place to rear young – In addition to nesting in native trees and shrubs, birdhouses that have good ventilation, adequate drainage and can easily be cleaned out will all support local bird populations.

Find our recommendations for landscape plants that birds love at pwwin.rs/bird-friendly.

BETTER TOGETHER

Peanut butter and jelly, chips 'n dip, hot cocoa and marshmallows... some things are just better together. That's what you'll find when you pair the perennials and shrubs you see pictured here.

The most important thing to remember when matching plants up is their sun, soil and water needs should align. For instance, group plants that thrive in rich, moist woodland conditions together. Then, find a much sunnier spot where the soil never stays wet for long for plants like butterfly bush and catmint which will flourish there.

RESOLVE THE SUN/SHADE DILEMMA

A tricky situation to master happens when an unmovable object like your house or a tall fence creates a sharp delineation between sun and shade in a garden bed. You might have both extremes within just a few feet.

That's the case with this north-facing mid-mod ranch. The front of this border and pot to the left of the bench see 6+ hours of sun each day, while the plants and planters closest to the house receive little to no direct sun.

A cohesive look is achieved by choosing plants which all fall within the same color palette but whose lighting needs match their location. Those positioned in the transition area between sun and shade, like coleus, sweetspire and sweet potato vines, thrive equally under both conditions.

Shade plants in landscape: PEGASUS® Begonia, CHARMED® Wine Oxalis (Shamrock), SUMMER WAVE® Large Amethyst Torenia (Wishbone Flower) and SUMMER WAVE® Large Violet Torenia (Wishbone Flower)

Part sun/part shade plants in landscape: COLORBLAZE® TORCHLIGHT® Plectranthus (Coleus), HEART OF THE JUNGLE® Colocasia (Elephant's Ear) and 'Coffee Cups' Colocasia (Elephant's Ear), LITTLE HENRY® Itea (Sweetspire), SHADOWLAND® 'Seducer' Hosta, and Sweet Caroline Bewitched AFTER MIDNIGHT™ Ipomoea (Sweet Potato Vine)

Full sun in landscape: GRACEFUL GRASSES® Purple Fountain Grass Pennisetum, GRACEFUL GRASSES® Fireworks® Pennisetum (Variegated Red Fountain Grass), SUPERTUNIA VISTA® Fuchsia Petunia, ROCKIN'® Deep Purple Salvia, ROCKIN'® Fuchsia Salvia and METEOR SHOWER® Verbena

5 WAYS TO GARDEN MORE SUSTAINABLY:

1. Seek out Proven Winners grown in our plant-powered, fully compostable Eco+ Grande™ containers. They're made from starchy renewable plants grown in the U.S. and have organic nutrients built right in to feed your flowers.
2. Recycle your branded white containers which are easily recognized by modern recycling equipment. Our black-lined containers are made with a minimum of 30% recycled materials. All Proven Winners plastic containers are 100% recyclable.
3. Limit your water usage by up to 75% when you use our self-watering AquaPots®. WaterWise® drip irrigation also conserves water and can be set to an automatic timer.
4. Eliminate wasteful runoff by installing a rain garden using native plants. This project can be done in a weekend and will have a huge impact. Rain gardens prevent excess water, fertilizer and debris from entering your city sewers and ending up in nearby lakes, rivers and streams.
5. Buy local. Limit your carbon footprint by purchasing your plants at your local independent garden centers. They are supplied by nearby growers or grow their own plants, which limits transportation and carbon emissions.

We believe plant-powered packaging is the future. That's why we've partnered with one of the most innovative container manufacturers in the U.S. to develop our Eco+ Grande container. It's made from plants for plants, using a small portion of the starch from corn kernels. If one of your goals is to garden more sustainably, we're here to join you on that mission. Together, we can all make an impactful difference.

Use our Find a Retailer tool at pwwin.rs/find-retailer to locate a store near you that is offering plants in our Eco+ Grande container this year.
